Findings: On at 9:22 am, the administrator said the facility did not have any adverse incidents that required notification to the regulatory agency. A review of a grievance report revealed resident #1's family reported the resident was missing a necklace. The report documented that law enforcement responded to the facility after the resident's family called them about the necklace. On at 12 pm, the administrator said the required reports were not submitted to the regulatory agency when law enforcement responded to the facility because the family called them and not the facility.
